The New Color of Money!

Treasury of Gift Collections

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing takes great pride and pleasure in presenting its "Treasury of Gift Collections." This unique line of currency related products have been selected with care and represent the historic art of hand engraving and intaglio printing. Both art forms date back many centuries, reaching prominence during the renaissance, but were employed well before that in ancient cultures around the world.

This year marks several milestones for the BEP with a focus on the introduction of The New Color of Money, Series 2004 $20 note and much anticipated opening of the Western Currency Facility Tour and Visitor Center, Spring 2004, in Ft. Worth, Texas.

Featured on pages 8-9 of this catalog is educational information regarding The New Color of Money. This information will enhance your knowledge of newly issued U. S. paper currency which in turn ensures the money in your pocket is legal and authentic.

We hope that you will enjoy this special selection of our exquisite and unique line of currency related products as well as our engraved prints. Remember the Buck Truly Starts Here!

Star Note Collection

Star notes were first used in 1910. They are produced in all denominations with the sole intent of replacing notes that are removed from regular production for a variety of reasons: research, testing, or damage. A star note has all the security features of other notes. However, it is distinguishable by a star in lieu of a suffix letter at the end of its serial number.

$1 Lone Star Note

A Unique $1 Star Note, made in Texas, by Texans, for Texans or for those who wish they were Texans!

The Western Currency Facility Tour and Visitor Center will be opening in the Spring 2004!

In Texas Longhorn tradition, "FW" is "branded" on the face in the lower right corner of the note, to signify that the note was printed in Fort Worth. A note with the prefix letter "K" at the beginning of the serial number indicates the bank designation letter for the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas. At the end of the serial number, rather than the usual alphabetical suffix, there is a star. Hence, the note is called the "Lone Star Note."

The New Color of Money
Safer, Smarter, More Secure

The new $20 design retains three important security features that were first introduced in the 1990s and are easy for consumers and merchants alike to check: watermark, color-shifting ink and security thread.

Watermark

Hold the bill up to the light and look for the watermark, or faint image, similar to the large portrait. The watermark is part of the paper itself and can be seen from both sides of the note.

Security Thread

Hold the bill up to the light and look for the security thread, or plastic strip, that is embedded in the paper and runs vertically up one side of the note. If you look closely, the words "USA TWENTY" and a small flag are visible along the thread from both sides of the note.

Color-Shifting Ink

Look at the number "20" in the lower right corner on the face of the bill. When you tilt the note up and down, the color-shifting ink changes color from copper to green.
